Procedure	Assessment
Participants	III B.sc (N), IV B.sc (N)
Venue	Obstetrics & Gynecology Lab
Topic	Immediate New Born Care Landmarks of fetal skull and pelvis
Faculty	Mrs.Revathi I
Significance	Immediate New Born Care immediate newborn assessments include weight, length, and medicines. Even the first bath is done right in room. As quickly as possible, a new baby is placed in your arms. Often, the baby is placed skin-to-skin on your chest right after birth The process of childbirth involves the passage of the fetal head through the mother's birth canal. The skull bones, specifically designed to protect the brain, play a crucial role during this journey. The smallest diameter of the fetal skull needs to align with the largest diameter of the mother's bony pelvis for the delivery to progress smoothly. This alignment ensures that the baby can pass through the birth canal without excessive pressure on the delicate brain and surrounding structures
Outcome	At end of a session the students will be able to do immediate care newborn and landmarks alignment ensures the delivery of fetus
